About:

Pusa White Sella Basmati Rice is a variety of rice that belongs to the Basmati rice family. Basmati rice is a long-grain rice known for its fragrant aroma and delicate flavor. Pusa White Sella Basmati Rice is a specific type of Basmati rice that has been parboiled (partially boiled) and then dried, resulting in a characteristic yellowish-white color.

Pusa White Sella Basmati Rice is popularly used in various Indian and Middle Eastern dishes, especially in biryanis, pilafs, and other rice-based dishes. Its long grains and aromatic flavor make it a preferred choice for special occasions and festive meals. It's important to note that the Pusa variety of Basmati rice is named after the agricultural research institute in India where it was developed, the Indian Agricultural Research Institute (IARI) in Pusa, Bihar. Pusa Basmati rice varieties are known for their quality and are widely cultivated in India and exported to various countries around the world.
