Product Description

About:

Wedding garlands, also known as "varmala" or "jaimala," hold a significant place in Indian weddings and many other cultures around the world. These beautifully crafted floral garlands play a symbolic role in the union of two souls in matrimony.

In Indian weddings, the exchange of varmalas is a sacred tradition symbolizing the acceptance and union of the bride and groom. Wedding garlands are carefully crafted by skilled florists who select fresh, fragrant flowers, often roses or jasmine, to create stunning and fragrant arrangements. Wedding garlands come in various designs and colors, with white, red, and pink being the most popular choices. During the wedding ceremony, the bride and groom stand facing each other, often under a canopy or mandap. This ritual is usually accompanied by cheers, blessings, and sometimes playful attempts by family and friends to lift the couple closer to each other.
